In life, we learn most skills and habits by doing the same things over and over again. This is often referred to as conditioning.

And so it must be with safety. Remember we're talking about YOUR safety as well as that of your co-workers. So today we are going to be repetitive and do some conditioning.

Good housekeeping is a must for a safe job. Don't leave things laying around. Get rid of trash and debris by putting it in the proper containers. Pick up tools and put them where they are safe and available. Store material safely and out of the way.

Always wear your hardhat.

Wear safety glasses (or other appropriate eye protection) for the task of being performed.

Safety harnesses should be used when necessary.

Your clothing should be snug fitting. Your shoes or boots should be well made and sturdy, in a good state of repair. Wear protective clothing as the situation demands.

All tools and particularly hand tools should be used with care in the prescribed manner.

If you think its boring to go over the same old ground again, think again!

IT'S YOUR SFAETY WE'RE TALKING ABOUT HERE SO STAY TUNED!!
